

I was sexually abused as a little girl at least twice by family and friend, I was physically abused multiple times by the same family member, and I was emotionally abused throughout my life. This has led to a lot of shame for me as someone who is attracted to children.

Most people think of men when they hear or say the word "pedophile", but some of us are women, too. I have heard a lot of friends and family say hurtful things like "If a pedophile ever came near my kids, I'd murder 'him'" and almost in the same breath encourage me to babysit for them.

Even though I have had crushes on children and some emotional attachments that I would say were too strong, I have never offended and am dedicated to making sure that no children are harmed, especially around or because of me. I want to help others, I want to help children, I want to keep everyone safe and happy and make sure that their lives are not ruined by physical and emotional pain.

I am not a monster. I am not a child molester.

I am a daughter.

I am a sister

I am a wife.

I am a friend.

I am a pedophile.

If you are a non-offending pedophile, you are NOT alone!

Your attractions do NOT make you a monster and you don't have to feel ashamed!

If you are here instead to learn about people different from you so you can maybe learn to respect and accept us...

THANK You!!!
